Trading To Make Small Profits Scalping is a trading style that specializes in profiting off small price changes, generally after a trade is executed and becomes profitable. It requires a trader to have a strict exit strategy... Scalping: Small Quick Profits Can Add Up The key to being successful at day trading is to use strategies that earn profits regardless of the direction of the market. No one can predict the direction of the market on any given day, week, or month. As such, you need to make trades that profit from the movement of securities rather than the direction they are going. The Market ... When it comes to trading risk, most people have it all wrong. Risking small amounts on each trade, such as one percent of the account balance, is more likely to produce big returns over the long run than risking 20 percent of the account. The reason is that no matter how good a trader gets, losing trades happen, sometimes several in a row. How to Day Trade "Small" to Produce Big Returns So a $10 profit would have translated to 1k profit on a 100k account. But $10 is a small amount to make over a trade I held for maybe over 6 - 12hrs or even days, you tend to overtrade trying to make "realistic profit" from that small trading account.
